BELLARMINE LECTURE SERIES

“American Fiction in a Technological Culture” George W. Hunt, S.J. Editor-in-Chief, America

Wednesday, September 24, 1986, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Oak Room, admission free

Father Hunt, best-known for his analysis of the works of John Updike and John Cheever, is a distinguished authority on contemporary American novelists.

His most recent books, John Cheever, The Hobgoblin Company of Love, and John Updike and the Three Secret Things: Sex, Religion and Art, are cited as essential to the understanding of these two authors.

“By now, George Hunt must be known to every reader interested in contemporary American writing; there is no better guide to John Updike than Hunt’s John Updike and the Three Great Secret Things (BRD 1981). Now Hunt continues his exploration of the artists of suburban America with the only useful guide to the late Cheever.” Choice

The Bellarmine Lecture Series by Distinguished Jesuit Scholars was established in recognition of St. Robert Bellarmine, a sixteenth century theologian, under whose spiritual patronage Fairfield University was founded.
